

Charles' Investiture in 1969 marked a turning point in Welsh history. Feelings ran high about the installation of an English Prince of Wales, and there was almost open warfare between the police and young Welsh protesters. Demos and protests, dramatic stunts from the quasi-paramilitary Free Wales Army, hunger strikes, rifts in the Welsh Establishment, secret police, agents provocateurs and a well-organised bombing campaign – this book asks what caused this extreme reaction, whether it was worth it, and whether it could all happen again.

A popular history which brings this turbulent period vividly back to life through the first-hand recollections of many of the main figures involved in the protest movement, police, politics and Welsh culture at the time.

A Western Mail map showing the bombing campaign up to December 1968

Y Lolfa

www.ylolfa.com

Cover design: Y Lolfa

Cover photo: Keystone Press / Alamy

£9.99

ISBN 978-1-91263-138-4

9 781912 631384